

Conquer the Gasoline Reformulation Challenge!

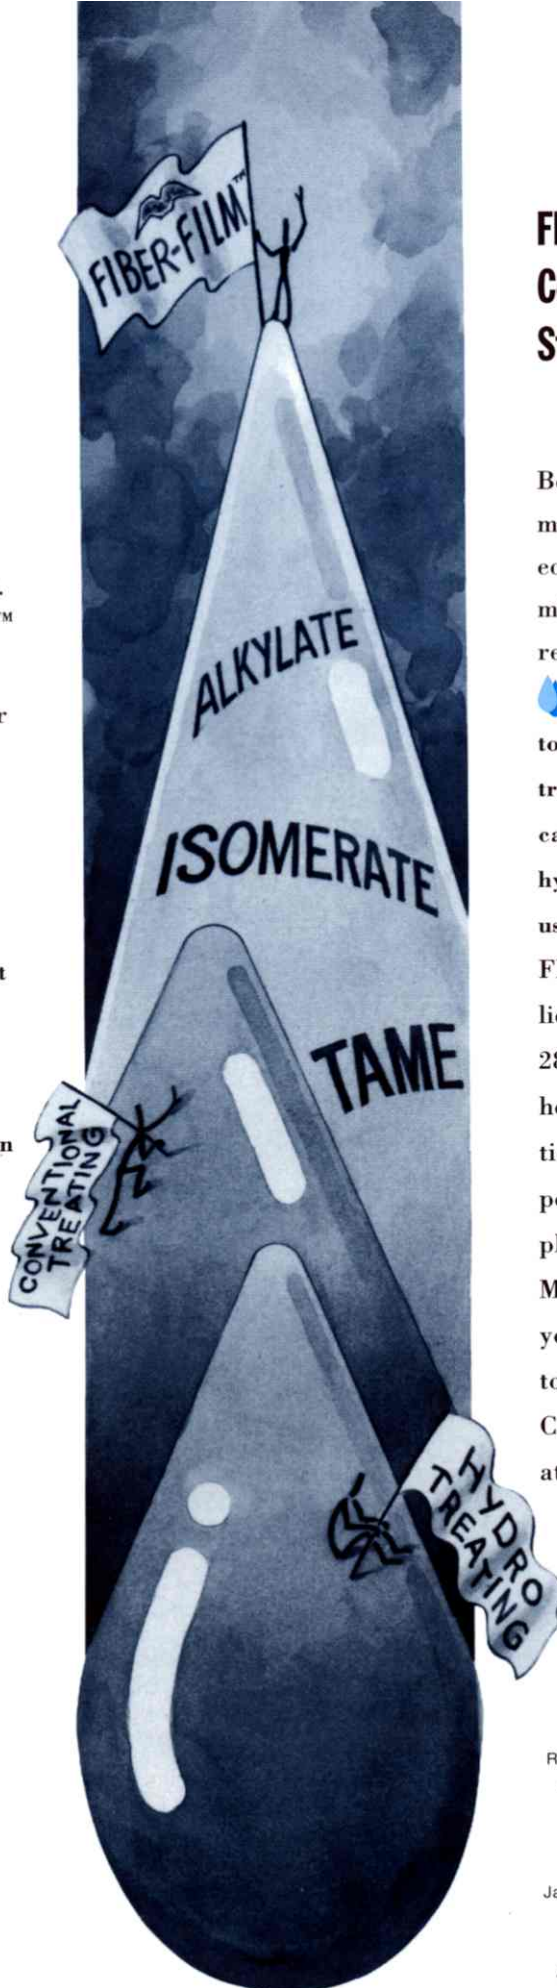

Merichem applies over 40 years of know-how to removing H₂S and mercaptans from C₅-C₈ hydrocarbons. Our efficient, patented FIBER-FILM™ Contactor, the core of our caustic treating technologies surmounts major obstacles to producing top-quality reformulated gasoline components. Without resorting to expensive alternatives, FIBER-FILM lets you:

- Reduce total sulfur content of light virgin, FCC and coker gasolines to meet the latest sulfur specifications without degrading octane.
- Meet requiring sulfur specs for TAME, C₅ alkylation, selective hydrogenation and isomerization unit feed-stocks to protect the sulfur-sensitive catalysts in these units.
- Achieve unlimited turndown capability for maximum operating flexibility.
- Produce essentially sodium-free product to protect the gasoline pool or downstream catalytic systems.

FIBER-FILM™ Eliminates Sulfur Compounds from Light Naphtha Streams Economically.

Best of all, FIBER-FILM processes make these towering achievements economical. You may be able to minimize capital investment and reduce operating cost by:

- Retrofitting conventional systems to increase capacity and improve treating effectiveness.
 - Substituting caustic treating for more costly hydrotreating to minimize hydrogen use and octane degradation.
- FIBER-FILM technology is now licensed for over 250 applications in 28 countries. We're scaling the heights of tighter product specifications in more than 100 refineries, petrochemical and natural gas liquid plants around the world. Merichem can help you raise all your gasoline production processes to new peaks of perfection. Call today for a complete proposal at no cost or obligation.
